The areas given below of acquisitions and States and Territories were determined by calculations made by a committee representing the General Land Office and Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, and the Bureau of Statistics and Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce and Labor, whose findings were adopted February 2, 1912, by the Secretary of the Interior, and February 10, 1912, by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

In every case the area is that included within the present boundaries. Square miles are given in roman type and acres in italic.

NOTE REGARDING DIAGRAM.

This diagram shows how the territory of the 13 original States and of subsequent acquisitions was divided into States and Territories. All lines read to the right and indicate successive subdivisions. The blocks on the diagram do not represent the relative sizes of the areas, as the size of the blocks has been determined by the amount of lettering within each one. The subdivisions of each block are important if the reader desires to trace the territory of any State back to the original acquisition. Thus, the District of Columbia was formed from Maryland and Virginia; the upper portion of the block showing the District of Columbia represents the area ceded by Maryland, while the lower portion represents the area ceded by Virginia. The portion of the District of Columbia ceded by Virginia was receded to Virginia in 1846, and the present District of Columbia is composed entirely of the area obtained from Maryland, as shown by the diagram. The Territory of Idaho in 1863 included portions of the Louisiana Purchase, the Oregon acquisition, and the Mexican cession. The present State of Idaho is composed entirely of area included in the Oregon acquisition. This is shown by following the line from "Idaho Territory, 1868," to the center division under "Idaho Territory, 1864," then to the fifth division under "Idaho Territory, 1863," then to the second division under "Nebraska Territory, 1863," ritory, 1861," then to "Washington Territory, 1859," then to "Washington Territory, 1853," and "Oregon Territory, 1853," then to "Oregon Territory, 1848," then to the "Oregon acquisition, 1846."
